

YOUR SINGULAR, MY LOVE

Is it what I want? I'd tried not to tell you, not make you see that I'm opaque to myself. Lost among electrons and protons and neutrons, arms tangled with legs. Precipitate fear that writing, though I want it, would make me a shadow. Or am I already? And still not worthy of the dark?